Italy's Action Will Not Interfere With German Treaty

PARIS, April 24.—The French government, with the British, has striven to the utmost for four days to prevent the explosion," says the Temps, in an editorial today on the Italian subject. "It has searched for a compromise which perhaps would have been easier to find had the Italians continued to participate in the deliberations. It has endeavored to delay publication of President Wilson's document."

The Temps then describes the present situation of the Adriatic problem, which it says in no way concerns Germany and hence the signing of the peace treaty by the German plenipotentiaries need not be delayed.

"If Premier Orlando returns to Rome," the newspaper continues, "his collaborators can remain here so that Italy can sign the treaty. The treaty with Austria-Hungary remains to be drawn up. The text of the 1915 treaty must represent Italy's territorial rights. On the other hand this treaty has no application as regards the United States which neither signed nor has recognized it."

Soldiers Should Be Given Opportunity To Buy Farms

NEW YORK, April 24.—Secretary of Interior Lane was applauded vigorously when he appealed to the publishers today to support his plan for the reclamation of waste land to provide farms for returning soldiers.

"It had been the traditional policy of the United States," he said, "to give land to our victorious soldiers. Now our public lands are exhausted. Why should we not expand and make a new domain?"

There are 215,000,000 acres of unused land which could be made productive, he said, and he answered the objection that soldiers are not anxious to own and work farms by asserting that he already had received 37,000 letters from soldiers, "asking for a chance to go on the government settlements and earn a farm."

The soldiers, he declared, should be encouraged to go into reclamation work, receiving a salary for their activities in reclaiming land and then should be given an opportunity to buy the land and pay for it in forty years.

Secretary Lane also urged support of the Americanization program, declaring that if the program were supported "every boy and girl under 21 years of age could be made to read and write the English language in eight years."

Thirty drums of gasoline and kerosene caught fire in the tunnel, filling the long tube with poisonous gas. As the train was about to pull out of Connaught, the eastern end of the tunnel, August Olson, a watchman, telephoned from the interior of the mountain, that the tunnel was afire. Olson was nearly overcome by gas. P. Auguston, another watchman, died.
